Public Safety Super Cluster

Smart Cities/Communities: Washington DC

Michael Dunaway, Director, NIMSAT, University of Louisiana at Lafayette

Archana Vemulapalli, Chief Technology Officer, Washington DC

Dean Skidmore, Principal Consultant, IoT+LTE Consulting Group

The Public Safety Super Cluster (PSSC) of the Global City Teams Challenge is a public-private partnership dedicated to identifying technologies, processes and strategies from among GCTC members to enhance public safety and resilience within smart connected communities, and improve the preparedness, response and recovery of modern society from the complex challenges, hazards and risks that threaten local and regional stability. The broad goal of the PSSC is to develop, integrate and pilot technology applications and test new operating procedures and employment methods in collaboration with first responders, public safety officials, and government agencies, to improve situational awareness before, during, and after an incident or civil emergency in order to protect human life, maintain community functions and infrastructure, and ensure public safety. Moreover, the PSSC aims to improve policies and procedures for integration of advanced communications methods and decision systems to enhance interagency planning and coordination of resources within smart and connected communities. The PSSC focuses specific attention on the integration of current and future Internet of Things (IoT) technologies to build resilience and sustainability into the technology ecosystem that comprises smart, connected communities. The PSSC was launched in 2016 by GCTC member communities engaged in developing public-safety focused technologies, and is currently open to membership by all communities, private sector enterprises, non-governmental organizations, and government agencies (at all levels), who share an interest in addressing current and future challenges in public safety, disaster preparedness, and community resilience through the development and integration of advanced technologies.

Participating exhibitors include: Fairfax County Fire & Rescue Department, George Mason University, University of North Texas, University of Louisiana Lafayette, TRX Systems, Databuoy Corporation, Alphabet Communication, EastBanc Technologies, University of Massachusetts Amherst

11:40 am –
12:10 pm

Transportation Super Cluster

Smart Cities/Communities: Portland, OR and Columbus, OH,

Wilf Pinfeld, CEO, Urban Systems

Skip Newberry, President and CEO, Technology Associates of Oregon

This Super Cluster was formed and is managed by forward looking municipalities interested in preparing their infrastructure for new technologies that look set to provide better, more equitable services at lower cost. It explores the opportunities provided by first and last mile vehicles including shared, low speed and autonomous. It explores the opportunities for building vibrant communities around transfer points and mobility hubs and it addresses how these vehicles and hubs can play a role in the last mile delivery of packages and other freight. To support these opportunities the Super Cluster works with teams developing new and advanced transportation models and environmental sensors that allow both the prediction of probable outcomes and the measurement of actual outcomes of introducing these technologies. Finally, the Super Cluster works with teams implementing a smart citySDK to ensure the portability and interchangeability of solutions and propose regulatory and policy changes that support the safe deployment of these technologies.

Participating exhibitors include: City of Portland, City of Baltimore, City of Columbus, Technology Association of Oregon, urban.systems Inc., Mobility Cubed, Innova EV, Organic Transit, Pacific Northwest National Lab, iSoftStone, Smart City Media, Portland State University, Starship Technologies, Baltimore Electric Vehicle Initiative, FIWARE, Hack Oregon, ubiwhere, Vulcan Inc., Coast Autonomous

Utilities – Energy, Water and Waste Management

Smart Cities/Communities: Atlanta, GA and San Leandro, CA
Ed Davalos, Sales Leader, Motorola Solutions
Deborah Acosta, Chief Innovation Officer, City of San Leandro, CA
Ken Thompson, Deputy Director, CH2M
Derick Lee, Founder and Chief Architect, PilotCity
Scott Pomeroy, President, Scalable Strategies
Kreg Christoff, Vice President, Motorola Solutions

The GCTC Utility Super Cluster purpose is to address leading sustainability issues in cities for Energy, Water and Waste by bringing cities and counties together in the United States and around the world with academia and technology partners to demonstrate real world class examples and best practices. The Super Cluster is managed in three groups with each group managed with its own working group chair. Each Energy, Water and Waste working group is responsible for managing active projects with a common goal to develop a common blueprint. The blueprint will represent best practices and serve as a practical guide for the implementation IoT technologies. Objectives for the Utility Super Cluster include:

- Reduce water lost through leaks in water transmission and distribution utility infrastructure*
- Increase water revenues with new and innovative metering technologies*
- Increase water conservation adoption with weather analytics bases solutions*
- Address city resilience needs with a focus on energy*
- Develop and implement new strategies for zero waste*
- Make it easy for cities to have access to public private partners funding models and government grant information*

Participating exhibitors include: Motorola Solutions, Hitachi Data Systems, SAP, Dekalb County GA, City Mart, Korea Institute Of Civil Engineering and Building Technology (KICT), Maps Group, OSIssoft, InterInnov / FIWARE, Northeastern University, Lawrence Berkeley National Lab, 21st Century Telecommunications, Inc., Clemson University, Odulair, Climatic, Maalka, US Department of Energy, Innovation Intelligence Institute, Dew Mobility, City of San Leandro, Motorola Solutions/Vidsys

11:20 –
11:50 am

Public Wi-Fi/Broadband

Smart Cities/Communities: San Leandro, CA, Schenectady, NY
Tony Batalla, IT Manager, City of San Leandro, CA
Jean Rice, Senior Broadband Program Specialist, NTIA
Bill Pugh, Managing Partner, Smart Connections Consulting LLC
Benny Lee, Project Manager and Ulysses Vinson, Smart Communities Officer, San Mateo County, CA
Steve Wimsatt, Senior Director, Ruckus Wireless
Mohammad Shakouri, Director, Joint Venture Silicon Valley
John P. Coluccio, Signal Superintendent, City of Schenectady, NY
Ulysses Vinson, San Mateo County, CA Smart Communities Officer

The GCTC Public Wi-Fi SuperCluster is focused on development of best practices for the deployment of high-speed, public Wi-Fi systems. As wireless internet connectivity has grown to become a critical part of our society, municipalities have discovered that wireless service in public spaces can be more than just a nice amenity; it can be a tool for economic development, a lever for tackling the digital divide and homework gap, and serve as core infrastructure in IoT networks, supporting smart city applications such as public safety, energy, lighting, transportation, and more. Yet, for all of its promise, the goals of deploying ubiquitous, public Wi-Fi connectivity and the building and sustaining a municipally-owned wireless system remain difficult to achieve. As a result, many municipalities have struggled to deploy and sustain these systems. The Public Wi-Fi SuperCluster will address these issues by analysis aimed at uncovering the best practices for successful deployments from municipalities themselves. These best practices will come in the form of interviews, workshops, and case studies covering four broad areas: technical design; financial, legal, and marketing; project management; and outcomes & use cases. By collecting, analyzing, and reporting this information in aggregate, the Public Wi-Fi SuperCluster aims to publish a blueprint for municipalities of any kind - whether large or small, urban or rural - to successfully deploy public Wi-Fi by learning from those who have done it already.

Participating exhibitors include: City of San Leandro, City of Schenectady, County of San Mateo, Joint Venture Silicon Valley, Ruckus Wireless, Verizon, Smart Connections Consulting

City Data Platform/Dashboard

Smart Cities/Communities: Kansas City, MO, Bellevue, WA

Bob Bennett, Chief Innovation Officer, City of Kansas City, Missouri

Aaron Deacon, Managing Director, KC Digital Drive

Brian Pugliese, Smart Water & Technology Project Manager, City of Bellevue, WA

Chris Crosby, CEO, Xaqt

Herb Sih, Managing Partner, Think Big Partners

The cities of Kansas City, Missouri and Bellevue, Washington are teaming with 20 other cities and several corporate partners including Cisco and XAQT to lead the GCTC City Platform Super Cluster. We believe that the heart of a Smart City is data. We believe that technology can make a city cool, but data (its collection, analysis and integration into a decision support platform) makes it smart. We are seeking to discover the common set of things we all measure and understand how we can standardize that list. By agreeing on what we measure, all cities can then apply the data in a manner that allows each of us to address our unique challenges regardless of the size, governance or location of our municipality.

Participating exhibitors include: MySidewalk, Site 1001, ThinkBig Partners, KC Digital Drive, City of KCMO, Xaqt, City of Bellevue, WA

US-Ignite

Pathways to At-Scale Smart City/IoT Deployments

Nick Maynard, Co-founder and Chief Strategy Officer, US-Ignite

Bill Maguire, Program Manager/Consultant, US-Ignite

To date, the GCTC initiative has spurred Smart City/IoT partnerships in nearly 100 communities and has helped project participants plan, implement and pilot innovative projects. A next step in the evolution of the GCTC initiative is to support efforts to bring scale to Smart City/IoT deployments. US Ignite will present an overview of US Ignite's efforts to support at-scale Smart City deployments and will lead a roundtable discussion regarding the topic.

2:00 – 3:00

MetroLab Network

Growing Role of City-University Partnerships in Advancing Urban Science

Ben Levine, Executive Director, MetroLab Network

Jon Fink, Professor of Geology / Visiting Professor of Urban Analytics, Portland State University / University of British Columbia

Mina Sartipi, Lead Scientist for Smart Cities and Urban Science, University of Tennessee-Chattanooga

Grant Ervin, Chief Resilience Officer, City of Pittsburgh

Uwe Brandes, Faculty Director, Urban & Regional Planning Program, Georgetown University

MetroLab's partner workshop at the GCTC Expo will discuss the growing role of city-university partnerships in advancing urban science and will also provide a preview of the upcoming MetroLab Network Annual Summit on September 13-14 in Atlanta GA. MetroLab Network is a national network of 40 city-university partnerships focused on urban innovation and will be hosting their Annual Summit in partnership with the City of Atlanta and Georgia Tech. The Summit will bring together leaders from local government, universities, industry and non-profit and is an opportunity to share, discuss, and present on the impact of data, analytics, and technology on local government.

European Union Initiatives on Technology Innovative Solutions and Collaboration among Cities/Communities

Moderators:

Giulio Busulini, Science and Technology Attaché, Embassy of Italy

Martijn Nuijten, Science and Technology Attaché, Embassy of the Kingdom of the Netherlands

Panel Presentations:

Andrea Glorioso, Counsellor (Digital Economy / Cyber), Delegation of the European Union to the U.S.

“European initiatives supporting smart cities and IoT solutions “

Simona Costa, Chairman, Action Cluster Integrated Planning, The European Innovation Partnership on Smart Cities and Communities

“Overview on the European Innovation Partnership (EIP) for Smart cities and communities initiative”

Giuliana Torta, Counsellor (Environment, Climate, Maritime), Delegation of the European Union to the United States of America

“Transatlantic cooperation for urban sustainability.”

Carlota Cenalmor, Deputy Representative of the European Investment Bank (EIB) DC Office

“Funding innovative cities: Public –Private co-investments mechanisms supporting scalable solutions”

Today 78% of European citizens live in cities, and 85% of the EU's GDP is generated in cities. Many European cities are forerunners in the much-needed transition towards a low carbon, resource efficient and competitive economy. Cities are central to delivering on key challenges for Europe's society and economy: jobs, growth and investment, innovation, security, energy- efficiency, low-carbon development - to name a few. Linking and upgrading infrastructures, technologies and services in key urban sectors (transport, buildings, water, waste, energy, ICT) in a smart way will improve quality of life, competitiveness and sustainability of cities. Markets are often fragmented, missing out on their full economic potential. Many innovative solutions require new business models and financing solutions for decreasing risk. Since demand for better infrastructures and services is high and still increasing but public budget is under pressure, knowledge needs to be shared effectively and capacities developed.

Funding Opportunities to Help Shape the Future of Smart Cities and Communities

Mehan Jayasuriya, Program Manager, Mozilla

Bob Bennett, Chief Innovation Officer, City of Kansas City, Missouri

Meghan Houghton, Staff Associate, NSF's Directorate for Computer and Information Science and Engineering

Jogchum Poodt, ConnectHome Manager, Office of Public Housing Investments, U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development

Jean Rice, Senior Broadband Program Specialist, BroadbandUSA/NTIA

Many cities embarking on smart city initiatives are leveraging partnerships and funding to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of their communities. This session will highlight opportunities for funding and partnerships including: the National Science Foundation's (NSF) sponsored Mozilla's $2 million Wireless Innovation for a Networked Society (WINS) Challenge that seeks practical, new wireless solutions to help connect people after a disaster or in areas without sufficient connectivity; the Department of Housing and Urban Development funding available for public Wi-Fi/smart cities projects in low income areas; NSF's grants to promote smart cities and networking innovation; and how partnerships can leverage city assets, university knowledge and private resources to enable a variety of innovative smart cities solutions as done in Kansas City, Mo.

Tuesday, August 29, 2017 1:00 – 5:00 pm

1:00 – 2:00 pm	U.S. Department of Homeland Security GCTC- Secure Connected Cities and Communities (SC3) Scott Tousley, Deputy Director, CSD, Science and Technology Directorate, DHS DHS S&T/CSD is working with NIST and the next phase of the Global Cities Team Challenge program (GCTC), through a “Secure Connected Cities and Communities” program (SC3). The purpose of this workshop is to begin a discussion of the key initial question for the SC3 effort: What are potential conceptual and technical approaches to the challenges of securely connecting cities and communities? Some of the questions that will be used to help guide workshop discussion are: <ul style="list-style-type: none">- How to securely connect and operate different systems and infrastructures, that were not designed or developed together?- Are there particular architectures, frameworks, analytical approaches, etc., that might prove most valuable to SC3 and its participants?- How to balance the growth of security capacity, between top-down/architectural and bottom up/evolutionary approaches?- How to address the related topics of security and privacy, in connected cities and communities? Scott Tousley will open the workshop with a short introduction to the SC3 effort, and then will be assisted by several individuals from SRI in guiding a workshop/audience discussion. Attendees are asked to come to the workshop with one question that they have about the challenge of secure connected cities and communities, to contribute to the workshop discussion.
2:00 – 3:00 pm	FIWARE Creation of Opportunities of Cooperation between North-American Cities and SMEs Jorge Alfonso Kurano, Project Manager, FIWARE/ Universidad Politecnica de Madrid Wilfred Pinfold, CEO, Urban Systems Lanfranco Marasso, Smart City Program Director, Engineering Ingegneria Informatica S.p.A. Andrea Cruciani, CEO, TeamDev Antonio Jara, CEO, HOP Ubiquitous Rui Costa, CEO, Ubiwhere Mathieu Carlier, CEO, Everimpact The objective of the FIWARE workshop is the creation of opportunities of cooperation between the North-American cities and subject matter experts (SMEs) currently working on FIWARE-based solutions. With this workshop, we aim to create an open debate addressing the needs of the cities, and their short-term activities. The workshop will also create an opportunity for the SMEs to interact directly with the cities and try to find a common ground to start working together.
3:00 – 4:00 pm	International Trade Administration Doing Business with the International Trade Administration Holly Vineyard, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Global Markets for the U.S. Department of Commerce Cody A. Holly Vineyard, the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Global Markets, will kick off the workshop with an introduction to the International Trade Administration. Cody A. Dietrich, U.S. Commercial Officer, Virginia and Washington D.C office, will outline key steps to developing a successful export strategy. Mr. Dietrich will review U.S. Commercial Service programs to help Smart City exporters connect with buyers around the world. ITA will also have representatives from SelectUSA (ITA’s foreign direct investment team), the Advocacy Center, sector specialists from the Industry & Analysis business unit of ITA, and representatives from Taiwan on hand to discuss how ITA can help you grow your business.

The Science of Measuring Cities

Joshua Tan, Researcher, Oxford University

Christine Kendrick, Smart Cities Project Manager, City of Portland, Oregon

Abhishek Dubey, Assistant Professor, Vanderbilt University

How can we tell whether a city is sick or healthy? Whether it is rich or poor? Fair or unfair? Measuring a city requires that we ask hard questions not only about the data (yes, there's a lot of it) but also about the ways we think about that data: namely our models of cities. These models define and constrain our strategic priorities, enable policy reactions to data, and often circumscribe what we count as relevant and irrelevant information. In this session, we review one of the simplest examples of a model: key performance indicator frameworks, and discuss recent efforts by NIST and GCTC to build a science of measuring cities on top of these indicator frameworks.

Moderator: Dan Correa

Data governance is one of the primary challenges to the deployment of smart cities technologies today. The data governance challenge has two main components. First, the structure and operations of city government as an organization and second, the policies and technologies for the collection, storage, exchange, security and use of public data, particularly public sector IoT data, both internally and externally. Many cities have successfully implemented data management and open data solutions for public data. But, there is not yet developed a comprehensive strategy for handling all of the data from thousands of IoT sensors available now and envisioned for the future. Cities are interested in IoT technology as a way to improve operations and the delivery of services. What is a standard, but flexible and customizable framework that will allow cities to use and exchange IoT data for public value while protecting public privacy and trust? GCTC's Data governance and exchange SuperCluster aims to address the challenge of building a standard governance and exchange model for IoT data and a plan for governments to successfully customize and deploy it. The group will work to produce guidelines for data exchange and governance, as well as deployed proofs to share with other teams and stakeholders.
